New sensation for gardeners

A world beating Mawdesley gardening company's new invention is attracting national attention.

Greenhouse Sensation has come up with the Vitopod - a height adjustable propagator and mini greenhouse.

It was developed and trialled at the company's demonstration greenhouse in Mawdesley and visitors from all over the country are expected to flock to the greenhouse this spring and summer.

Visitors will see exotic and familiar plants growing in the greenhouse, including bananas, chillies, peppers, tomatoes, ginger, lemongrass and cardamom.

Greenhouse Sensation is no stranger to publicity. In 2000 the company was featured on BBC's North West Tonight as it entered the Guinness World Book of Records for growing the world's longest tomato plant.

Company founder and managing director John Molyneux, who has lived in Mawdesley with his family for many years, said: "Mawdesley is a true living village with an excellent range of local industries and attractions. We are delighted to contribute to the local economy and employment."
